VOL. 10, NO. 299 MONESSEN, PA., THURSDAY MAY 23. 1912 SIX CENTS THE WEEK

WOMAN IS DEMENTED BY HUBBY'S PERFIDY

In the Monessen lockup is a female prisoner, Anna Gore, evidently of unsound mind as she was picked up while wondering aimlessly about the streets, peering vacantly in to faces of everyone she met and whispering and jabbering alternately in incoherent tones one moment, and with wild and discordant voice the next.

Poor soul, she was brought to this terrible state of mind by the heartless and inhuman actions of a beastly husband who, having little or no regard for his word or the vows taken at the marriage altar, left the woman to the cold and relentless charities of an on rushing and cruel world.

Mrs. Gore is, apparently about 29 years of age; a year or two ago she and her husband lived quietly and seemingly happily in a plain but comfortable little home in the hill district of Monessen, he being employed in one of the mills and making pretty fair wages.

Eighteen months ago that little home was broken up, the man disappearing and leaving the woman alone. She buried her sorrow for a time, held up her head and tried to make a living and move along with the rest of humanity But later 'she learned that he had gone to another state and married or at least taken up life anew with another woman.

This knowledge was more than the already heartbroken woman could bear, it weighed heavily upon her tortured mind until at last reason gave way and she became what she appeared to be when found wandering the streets aimlessly by the police officials. She is being given as good care and attention as is possible at the borough building, and within the coming few days she will be taken to the county home and placed in the insane department, at least until her mind is strengthened or her friends can be communicated with.

OPENING OF STOCK CO. AT STAR THIS EVENING

Tonight's the time the people of Monessen and contiguous territory have for weeks been waiting for—the opening of McShaffery's Summer Stock Company at the Star Theatre. This company has for several week been in course of make up and it has required a little more time than was at first anticipated for the reason that great effort and care was necessary to procure actors of worth—the best that could be found—and Mr. McShaffrey feels that he has been well paid for the delay, as he and his able director have gathered about them a company of people who are in every way capable and strong, and will please and become favorites with the patrons of this popular house.

The opening bill for tonight will be the great four act Western drama, "The Golden Giant Mine," produced under the direction of Will F. McNulty, a veteran in the profession, with special scenery and everything necessary to render the production true to life. Plenty of action and a deep heart interest throughout This is one of McKee Rankins best, and among the most powerful dramas of the day. The Star is the coolest theatre in the valley, hence just the place to get away from the oppressive, sweltering heat. Be sure to be on hand tonight. 1t

BAPTISTS AND PRESBYS CROSS BATS TO-NIGHT

A game in the Church League will be played this evening between the Baptists and the Presbyterians and tomorrow evening between the Christians and the Methodists. This evening's game is expected to prove one of the warmest arguments of the season as both teams were nip and tuck for second place last year, the Presby's pulling in a few points ahead of the "Hardshells." It is not known what the batteries will be for tonight's game, but both teams will make a determined effort to win. The Presby's have been greatly strengthened since the last game by the addition of several strong players. The game will be called at 6:15.

On next Monday evening at the river front Markle's floating theatre, one of the biggest and most elaborate floating palaces known will appear. The show this year is bigger and better than ever and the entertainment offered is of the kind that will appeal to all. A big free band concert will be given at noon and in the evening.

Throwers of Cracked Glass Are in Danger

Automobile owners who travel the streets and public roads hereabouts are very much put out at glass throwers and steps are being taken to capture some of the guilty parties. Monessen and Charleroi have become the mecca for this kind of malicious mischief and a number of auto owners have started a special fund to employ plain clothes men to capture the guilty persons. They will then be turned over to the American Automobile Association for prosecution and the limit of the law will be exacted as a penalty. All persons who in any way obstruct automobile traffic or deliberately plan to ruin tires by throwing glass or tacks are subject to heavy fine and imprisonment.

This business has been going on in Monessen uniterrupted and is becoming a very common nuisance to auto drivers. Many times and in different places the street is strewn with glass from curb to curb making it an impossibility to get through without damage. A few evenings ago one driver practically ruined two tires. The amusement the malicious persons get out of it does not measure up to the expense to those damaged, and it must be done away with. Within a few days a reward will be offered for the arrest of the guilty persons and when once caught no influence however great will keep such people form behind the bars, it matters not whether children or adults. The same course will be followed in Charleroi and other towns along the river.

Old Fayette City Man Killed

Frank Forsythe, age 43, of Riverside California, once prominent in the furniture business at Fayette City and Brownsville, was a few days ago instantly killed by his automobile running amuck and striking a tree. The body was so mangled that it cannot be brought to his old home in Fayette county for burial. The wife and three children survive.

County Humane Society to Invade Monessen

Harry Hazlett, of Greensburg has been appointed General Humane Agent for the Westmoreland county division of the Woman's Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and is beginning to organize and systematize his work to the best advantage and to get the best results. The custom is to appoint one Justice of the Peace in each locality to look after a violations of the humane law, and any cases coming under his respective jurisdiction are to be fully investigated and reported to Mr. Hazlett at Greensburg. This is an organization with a most commendable aim and it is to be hoped active work will be soon started here, as there is surely much to be done along that very line in this locality. The local appointment has not yet been made public.

Final School Examinations

The final examinations in the local schools begin today. The Seniors in the High School were examined the latter part of last week. Those who have made an average of 90 or above for the term are exempt from examination. The last examination will be held on Monday. School will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday and on Thursday the pupils will return for a short time to be assigned to their rooms for next year's work and to receive their cards.

DRIVER RUNS AMUCK AND PAYS PENALTY

Benjamin Draper, aged 22 years, a driver for L. P. Carter was yesterday sentenced by 'Squire Watkins to pay a fine of $10.00 along with costs making at total of $20.13 for abuse to animals one day last week while hauling a load of lumber out Morgan avenue. It is reported to have been too much for the horses, and he was beating them over the head and otherwise abusing them when citizens interfered and remonstrated; eventually a part of the load was thrown off the wagon, but the road being bad the horses still seemed to be "stuck" and failing to budge the load were again unmercifully abused by the driver. Hence information was made with the above result. During the mixup, it seems the driver, citizens and bystanders had some pretty hot arguments, and the former, pulling a knife from his pocket made an assault on a young man who was remonstrating with him and made an ugly gash on the shoulder. Another information was made against Draper on a charge of felonious assault. 'Squire Watkins returned this case for court and placed the offender under $300.00 bail which was furnished.

After Donora Sunday Violation

Rev. W. F. McKee in a sermon to his congregation in the First Presbyterian church, Monongahela in the course of his remarks said there was more Sabbath desecration to the square foot in Monongahela than in any town in which he had ever lived. He went after Sunday baseball without gloves and insisted that Donora was the only town in the state where this thing was permitted. He said the county authorities should look into the matter and put a stop to this evil. In Monongahela itself Mr. McKee gave figures to show the number of places which keep open for business regardless of all law or decency. Mr. McKee preached the sermon at the request of the Friday Conversational club.

Anna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kellar, 3 years old, died in the home of her parents in Loyalhanna last night as a result of swallowing a grain of corn May 8. It lodged in her windpipe.

PURE FOOD INSPECTOR SAMPLES OUR MILK

John Jenkins of Charleroi, special representative for the Dairy and Food Division of the Department of Agriculture of Pennsylvania was making a tour of Monessen yesterday and procured speceimens of our milk product from each and every dealer in the town to be forwarded to the Department for testing.

As there has not been any complaint heard among consumers, it is thought the report on the test will come back in as satisfactory form as last year, when there was not an irregularity reported for any of our dealers, every sample taken measuring up fully to the required standard in fatty substance, etc., required by the law.

Mr. Jenkins had other important matters to look after while in Monessen of a nature not to be yet made public, but bearing on some irregularities practiced here coming within the provins of his department, but the result of his investigation will not be made known until his reports are passed on by the deparment at Harrisburg.

Joy Riders Meet Waterloo

"We're from Pittsburgh; watch our smoke," was the slogan on two "joyous" auomobiles yesterday which essayed to pass over the streets of Washington at an excessive speed—Result: An official hold up, a quiet little legal hearing and a ruling by Justice Carmichael. The privilege of displaying their "smoke" in Washington cost each of the drivers only $10 and costs and caused the fair maidens conaiderable perturbation lest the news reach their homes in Pittsburgh before they did.

There is a great demand in Monessen for expansion. The town is too small to accomodate all the people who wish to live here. New families that are coming daily to settle and take positions in the additional industries cannot find the accommodations they would like. Houses are at a premium. There are no vacant places and families are forced to settle temporarily in adjacent communities. What we most need at this time is expansion. We need to take in additional territory and so improve it with corporate advantages as to make it attractive to the public, so that homes will be built and the town encouraged to grow commensurate with its industrial development. There are many acres of outlying land that would be readily improved if the assurance could be given that conveniences would come with time. People don't want to travel through the mud to get to their homes and we can't blame them. The winters make it disagreeable to go very far back.

McMahan borough as well as East Monessen should come into the borough limits and some effort should then be made to have paved streets enter these suburbs, side walks should be put down, sewers laid, gas and light furnished and see how marvelous the growth would be in a short time. President E. C. Sattley of the board of trade has appointed a committee to investigate and make a report. They should get busy at once and bring in a report and favorable action should follow. Let us get busy and grow. Grow big and grow prosperous.

The Greensburg Argus has discovered that a very near tragedy occurred in the court house a few months ago. It describes the tragedy in hair raising language and, like the old railroad story where the engine approached when a man was standing in the track. The engineer blew the whistle, the fireman rang the bell the neighbors screamed bloody murder and the man stepped off the track and went home to supper. Thats just like the story the Argus tells about Sheriff Shields shooting up the court house. The Argus has discovered that when sentence was pronounced the first time, Shields had a gun in his pocket—what an awful crime for a sheriff of a county when there is a big coal strike on—and his two sons were sitting in the court room at the same time. Now the Argus would like to know if they too had guns on their persons. Think of it! All this happened and nobody killed. "Ain't it awful Mabel?"

Who will control the next Pennsylvania Legislature seems to be a question very much unanswered in the minds of a number of people. The answer is, "the people." Everybody ought to know that "the people" rule this state now. Of course the affairs will be managed for awhile by one William Flinn, assisted by one Van Valkenburg.

One grand jury recommended the erection of an insane asylum on the new farm purchased at George station by the former board of commissioners. The May grand jury recommends the old county home site. The court insists that the work must proceed at once. Where will the building be located, is what people generally are waiting to see.

In the Second Row Back

The ominous tinkle of the little clock striking the hour made them both look up. He was first to speak As he drew from his ' set two slips of pasteboard, his w came in dull even tones.

"Here are the theater tickets I bought last week. If you care to go, we may as well pass the time there as in any other way."

Before answering she closed her book and placed it carefully upon the table. She gave no hint of haste nor of the response that passed through her at his words.

"Since you have the tickets, yes."

Just as she feared, he caught her wrist as she passed and held her in a firm grasp.

"Marian, what sense is there in this stubbornness? You know that I do not care so much for the reason of your going as I do your not telling me."

She tried to free herself. "That is not true," she gasped. "You want to know why I went there. I'd have told you, some time, if you'd trusted me."

"But, Marian, I hear you've been going there for a month, and I've known nothing of it. You knew I'd hate a thing like that."

"Your informant ought to have found out more. Why not have him try again? I'll never tell you, never. No matter what happens, I'll—never—tell—you."

He dropped her hand at that, and she went on into the other room. When she returned she had all her emotions well in control.

They reached their seats in the theater just as the curtain went up. In the half light Marian removed her hat and coat, and tried to settle herself to gather the threads thrown out in the first act.

Suddenly into the strained silence of the audience came a voice. "She says she doesn't love him but she'll marry him."

It was a girl's voice, and there was a familiar ring in it to Marian. "Did she say she'd marry him?" This time it was an older, more cautious voice. "Yes, but she does not love him."

There was a stir and a wavering titter among those within hearing Marian sighed and wondered if ever again she should feel so much interest in anything as one could hear in that girl's voice The play held nothing for her. She wondered how it was with James To her the pretense of enjoyment was becoming a burden and she wished that they had not come.

"She says she does not love him, but he'll never know. Oh it's awfully exciting!" Again Marian felt the stir in the audience, again she longed to see the play with the heart and eyes of the girl. If she could keep her thoughts upon the actors she must forget, for a little while, her heartache. "He says he's a buttinski. Oh, he's the funniest."

The curtain fell, the lights flashed up. Marian found herself in a state of painful bewilderment. Sometimes when she and James talked it over between the acts, they could come to a better understanding of the play. She took a cautious glance at her husband. He was sitting severely straight and still.

Marian gave up all thought of following the play. An unexpected tragedy had come into her own life, and nothing could blot it from her mind. Each moment she was becoming more frightened at the outcome of her quarrel. They could not go on like this.

"Hector says he'll stand by her to the end, if he dies for it." It was the girl's voice again in explanation.

Marian felt a relaxation of her tense nerves. Oh, what a time she should have had to keep James quiet if—. She was back at the old worry again. It pressed harder. She began to believe that she could not bear it much longer. She would have to tell James, but things could never be the same again He had doubted her and he had been so cruel about it that he had forced her to tell.

Marian glanced at her husband He cleared his throat and changed his position. The voice in continued conversation was tantalizingly familiar. Cautiously Marian moved her head. Just a little way, and then—

"Oh, mamma, there's the lady that comes to Helen's to give us the dancing lessons. Yes, the one right here in the silk dress, the shepherd's check. Oh, she is just lovely!"

"That's her husband, Helen showed him to me yesterday. He is awfully good looking."

Marian moved closer to the chair next the aisle and whispered:

"I—I wanted to buy that Gibbons for your birthday, James, with my own money. I knew you wouldn't like my doing—"

"Don't, dear," murmured James.

He kept a firm hold of her hand, pressing it gently now and again. She knew that he was ruining her glove but she was content. And while the last act held little more for her than the first and second, she could guess that it ended happily. And it gave a pretty glow to the reconciliation that had, in the past 15 minutes, changed things for her so materially.

Good in Discontent.

Discontent, if there is a reason for it, is a hopeful and useful sign.

WOMAN ESCAPES DREADFUL OPERATION

How She Was Saved From Surgeon's Knife by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mogadore, Ohio.—"The first two years I was married I suffered so much from female troubles and bearing down pains that I could not stand on my feet long enough to do my work. The doctor said I would have to undergo an operation, but my husband wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's VegetableCompound first. I took three bottles and it made me well and strong and I avoided a dreadful operation. I now have two fine healthy children, and I cannot say too much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. LEE MANGES, R. F. D. 10, Mogadore, Ohio.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Arrested on a Serious Charge

Stanislau Barci, aged 27 years was arrested yesterday on a serious charge preferred by Squiska Wiskeil a comely and pretty girl of about 20 years. The girl alleges that she and Barci were friends last summer and that he seemed very devoted and she says, thought he intended to marry her. At the hearing held yesterday the girl appeared carrying a three months old baby in her arms. The prisoner was bound over for court by Justice of the Peace Watkins. He was taken to Greensburg yesterday afternoon by Constable McGloughlin.

WHY not give your lad the same training?

"When I was a growing lad, and came upon many words in my reading that I did not understand, my mother, instead of giving me the definition when I applied to her, uniformly sent me to the dictionary to learn it, and in this way I gradually learned many things besides the meaning of the individual word in question—among other things, how to use a dictionary, and the great pleasure and advantage there might be in the use of the dictionary. Afterwards, when I went to the village school, my chief diversion, after lessons were learned and before they were recited, was in turning over the pages of the 'Unabridged' of those days. Now the most modern Unabridged—the NEW INTERNATIONAL—gives me a pleasure of the same sort. So far as my knowledge extends, it is at present the best of the one-volume dictionaries, and quite sufficient for all ordinary uses. Even those who possess the splendid dictionaries in several volumes will yet find it a great convenience to have this, which is so compact, so full, and so trustworthy as to leave, in most cases, little to be desired."—Albert S. Cook, Ph.D., LL.D., Professor of the English Language and Literature, Yale Univ. April 28, 1911.

News Notes of Society

A very pleasant party was given last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Evans in honor of the seventh birthday anniversary of their daughter, little Miss Hannah. The hours were from four until six and the young guests thoroughly enjoyed themselves playing games, romping and in a general childish social way. A most pleasing lunch was served to the extreme enjoyment of all, this proving one of the prime features of the evening, reflecting much credit on Mrs. Evans who proved herself a connoisseur in the preparation and serving of a feast dainty and pleasing. Many were the pretty gifts received by the little hostess of which she is justly appreciative. The guests were: Agnes and Charles Amann Mary, Kenneth and Winslow Fleming; Certrude Goodman, Pauline Bolig, Jean Smith, Olive May, and Charles Edward Knight. Isabelle and Guss Kruell, Morgan Cramer, Jack Persage and George Evans. Out of-town guests were Miss Emma C. Jones of Connellsville, Pa., and Miss Anna Pritchard of Jackson, Ohio.

The eighth dance in the series being given by the Monessen Club occurred last night at Eldora Park; there were forty couples present and a most enjoyable affair it was. The joyous company started for the park at 7:30 and returned at 11:30 and that four hours spent in the exhilarating, health giving air was sufficient cause for lifting the weight of about ten years of life's burden and the dance was just that much more enjoyed by all. The evening was ideal and the trip over and back, under the blue robe of heaven and the bright twinkling of the stars, was pleasure sufficient for one evening, aside from the unbounded social enjoyments This being the first number in the series to be held out doors or away from a close, stuffy hall, it was naturally the most enjoyed and all members are anticipating the next evening outing which will be soon. Music was furnished by the Park orchestra.

The Oneida Club met yesterday at the home of Mrs. John Hanlan on McKee avenue, and a most delightful afternoon was spent Their regular afternoon program of sociability, intermingled with appropriate nature was indulged in luncheon and ices being served and Mrs. Hanlon was highly complimented by her guests for her pleasing form of entertaining.

This evening in the Kilroy hotel the Junior class will banquet the Seniors of the High School. Albert Ferren will act as toastmaster. Speeches will be made by the members of the class and by the members of the faculty.

CANONSBURG GETS A THEATRE ORDINANCE

Canonsburg has a bran fired new theatre ordinance. No performance can be given without a license having been procured from the burgess. Circuses must pay $25 00 and $1.00 must be paid for each change of moving pictures. Proprietors may take out license a week in advance. The burgess can revoke a licenses and stop any show found violating the ordinance, giving immoral preformances, exhibiting deformed or natorious persons.

No balcony or gallery will be permitted that has not an independent exit and escapes aside from the entrance or ascent from the auditorium floor. That is, all persons must leave the gallery by way of an exit entirely separate and independent from other entrances etc. $500.00 is the penalty set for violation, along with costs and imprisonment of 30 days with a possible jail sentence. It's very evident Canonsburg is attempting to guard against a repetition of the theatre fatality which occurred there more than a year ago, but it also is apparent that the city fathers have been a dangerously long while getting around to the point of necessary precaution.

MONESSEN TO HAVE A LONG TROLLEY CIRCUIT

The Monongalia county court has authorized citizens to vote on a bond issue of $200,000 to extend the Morgantown & Dunkard Valley Street railway to Blacksville. This connects with the Waynesburg-Blacksville line, now in process of construction, and eventually will be a part of a trolley system from Grafton, W. Va., to Pittsburgh. Thus it will be made possible to go from Monessen or Charleroi through this vast stretch of pretty country and natural scenery to Waynesburg. Morgantown and Grafton, W. Va. via Pittsburgh. It will make a pleasurable and novel trip, if not thoroughly practical and direct.
